REACH OUT TO THE MOST VULNERABLE

Like many teens, Jacob* is really into sports. He enjoys playing baseball and is a running back on his high school football team. The Steelers and the Dodgers can count him as one of their most enthusiastic fans.

However, just a few short years ago Jacob wasn't running down the field, he was running away from one foster home after another.

Disconnected from his family and falling further into crisis, he finally found safety and security in the Crisis Psychiatric Care program at Albertina Kerr. This short term residential program provides a secure alternative to hospitalization for kids needing 24-hour supervision, a psychiatric evaluation and crisis stabilization. In addition, the staff works to develop a plan for the future while connecting children and families to the support they need.

Kerr strives to provide a continuum of care to children based on their level of need. The goal is to ultimately return the child to their home, family, and community.

CRISIS PSYCHIATRIC CARE (SUBACUTE)

Typically a two-week residential stay that offers kids ages 6 to 18 a safe place to stay and 24-hour access to mental health professionals to address urgent mental health crises. The goals of the program are to stabilize children in crisis and provide effective mental health treatment.

INCLUDED AND EMPOWERED

When Jacob was ready to leave the Crisis Psychiatric Care program, he still needed a more intensive level of care. After moving over to Albertina Kerr’s Intensive Treatment Program, he started to learn how to talk about his concerns instead of using behavior to express his emotions. He learned how to live with other kids and to connect with staff members. Eventually, Jacob was ready for more independence and to be part of the community.

At first, he moved into an Albertina Kerr Youth Group Home for kids who need the most supervision. While there, he “learned a lot of stuff...like life skills” and adjusted to living in a neighborhood, going to school and responsibility. He also discovered a need to speak out on behalf of other kids. Over time, Jacob has become an advocate for children throughout Kerr. In particular, he takes great pride in serving on the planning committee for the Kerr Games, a twice-yearly opportunity to come together, play sports and just be kids.

INTENSIVE TREATMENT PROGRAM

The only program of its kind in Oregon, the Intensive Treatment Program is a safe and secure residential treatment program for youth with developmental disabilities, many of whom have concurrent mental health challenges. Youth receive education, therapy, and life skills training. The goal is for every child to develop the stability and skills to successfully live in the community.

YOUTH GROUP HOMES

Albertina Kerr neighborhood group homes for youth offer specialized care and treatment for children ages 7 to 18 with developmental disabilities and mental health challenges. Each home is staffed 24 hours a day, seven days a week, by direct care staff. They work as a team together with family members, psychiatrists, therapists and behavior support specialists to develop each child's treatment plan to meet shared goals. Many residents have a history of abuse and neglect and have experienced multiple placements outside their own home. Moving to a Kerr group home allows youth to establish a safe, nurturing and stable home environment where they have their own room, healthy meals and an active life within their neighborhood.

“There aren’t many agencies that do more than Albertina Kerr for those most in need. The needs are major and Albertina Kerr has evolved to meet those needs.”

Chris Brown,
Emeritus Board Member
ATTORNEY, GARVEY SCHUBERT BARER

BECOMING PART OF THE COMMUNITY

In time, Jacob demonstrated that he was ready for more independence. He took the opportunity to move to a group home for kids who were also ready to do more on their own. Today, he is a junior in high school and enjoys going to the park, meeting his friends at the mall and spending time on the internet. At first he says he didn't want to talk to other kids at school, but becoming part of the football team has changed that. His teammates have become like family. Jacob also spent the summer working at Kerr Bikes, where he says he enjoyed learning job skills, how to work with customers and responsibility. He sees Albertina Kerr as a place where you can learn independence and how to advocate for yourself.

KERR BIKES: SUPPORTING THE COMMUNITY

Beyond providing great fun on the waterfront through bike rentals, Kerr Bikes also supports the community. All proceeds benefit Albertina Kerr and Kerr Bikes also employs people with developmental disabilities in meaningful jobs. You'll see people who receive services from Albertina Kerr fixing up the bikes, giving directions, and handing out brochures, among other duties.

“I’ve seen progress in myself since I’ve been here,” said Jacob. “If it wasn’t for the staff and the support that I got from them, I would still be running away.”

A SOCIETY THAT HAS NO BARRIERS

When Lori and Teresa* first connected with Albertina Kerr, their world was limited to home and family. The sisters, now in their 40s, both have developmental disabilities and have lived at home in Eugene for their entire lives, rarely venturing out as they got older. After their father passed away, mom was home alone with the sisters and needed help. She turned to Albertina Kerr.

Today, with support from Kerr's Community Inclusion services, a whole new world has opened up for Lori and Teresa. Two years ago, they started as volunteers picking up paper for recycling at a number of office buildings. That volunteer work has evolved into paid positions, their first jobs. They are also leading more independent lives, enjoying the movies, bowling, swimming, eating out and even producing work for art shows, from glass to beads.

After 20 years at home, their mother is grateful that they have the opportunity to be part of the community: "They both have blossomed. I didn't know all this was possible."

COMMUNITY INCLUSION

People with developmental disabilities have the opportunity to participate in the workforce, community activities and volunteer through Community Inclusion services. Increased independence, productivity, community integration and expanded social relationships are the result.

- 109 People took part in community inclusion
- 95 Percent of personal goals partially or fully completed

REASON TO SMILE

Alice* had been removed from every single school, daycare or other program she attended for unruly behavior. With a divorce in the family, the situation intensified and her parents turned to the medical system for help. After ten days in the hospital, they finally found a safe setting for their daughter in Kerr's Crisis Psychiatric Care program.

The team at Albertina Kerr provided an environment where Alice could stabilize and developed a team to plan for her future. "Coming to Albertina Kerr allowed us to feel, as a family, that other people were seeing the same behavior," said her mother. "We no longer felt alone."

After a brief stay, Alice was able to return to her family. Today, the team at Kerr continues to provide care through Intensive Community-Based Treatment Services. It has been a difficult road for her mother, "As a parent, it was scary to let go and put my trust in the professionals. It's one of the hardest things I've ever had to do but if we didn't get something done right away, this could affect her entire life."

Today, for the first time, she is going to school every day. Alice has learned skills that allow her to take breaks and express what she needs in the classroom. The Kerr team still sees her and her family once a week, but she continues to progress toward a less intensive level of care. Her mother says, "She is a whole different child. It's definitely been a positive experience although it was hard in the beginning."

INTENSIVE COMMUNITY-BASED TREATMENT SERVICES

Community-based services for children ages 3 to 17 at risk of being removed from their home or school due to mental health challenges. In addition to help building strong connections within the community, the child and family may receive home-based therapy, skills training and access to a 24-hour helpline.

- 97 Children received treatment services
- 64 Percent of children showed improvement in high risk behaviors
- 100 Percent of families felt their family's quality of life has improved

ALBERTINA KERR

2010-11 HIGHLIGHTS

Albertina Kerr's board developed, long-term strategic plan includes five key goals. Here are the highlights of our progress this year:

Goal 1: Expand programs and services

A new transitional group home was opened for young adults ages 18 to 26 moving from a youth group home into an adult setting. They are now able to live with their peers before stepping into independent living or a traditional group home.

Goal 2: Elevate Kerr to the "Employer of Choice"

Three years into the current strategic plan, there is a 35 percent reduction in employee turnover, a 10 percent reduction in employee injuries and an improved quality of hire.

Goal 3: Maintain and improve the stability and diversity of funding

As the State of Oregon faced budget reductions, Albertina Kerr worked with advocates, peer associations and the community to communicate the importance of funding for services for people with developmental disabilities and mental health challenges. While many anticipated cuts to programs were not made, Kerr also moved to improve efficiencies to ensure the long-term stability of the organization. In addition, more than $1 million in planned gifts and an increase in event revenue helped increase funding for the organization this year.

Goal 4: Increase awareness of Kerr

In the second year of the Army of Angels campaign, awareness of Albertina Kerr increased an additional 11% in a survey of the general public.

Goal 5: Define the best opportunities for long-term use of Kerr's physical assets

Many services previously housed at the Gresham Campus, including outpatient services, foster care, the family resource center, human resources and IT were moved to a new, short-term location at Cascade Station as plans are made for the long-term use of the campus.

Albertina Kerr provides a wide range of mental health services for children and support for their families. We also provide care and skills training for people with developmental disabilities, serving people in their homes, in the community and in group homes.

We serve individuals from throughout Oregon at facilities throughout the Willamette Valley, with services primarily offered in Clackamas, Lane, Marion, Multnomah, and Washington Counties. We also work with foster families in Northwest Oregon.

IMPROVING THE LIVES OF OREGONIANS IN NEED FOR MORE THAN 100 YEARS

Established in Portland in 1907, Albertina Kerr has long supported children and families from a nursery and adoption center to supported living, employment and life skills training for people with developmental disabilities. Over the decades, our services have evolved to meet community needs. Today, we serve children and adults with mental health challenges and developmental disabilities.

WHAT WE DO

Albertina Kerr provides a continuum of services to children, adults and families living with mental health challenges and developmental disabilities.

FOR ADULTS WITH DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES & THEIR FAMILIES:

COMMUNITY INCLUSION

Support for people with developmental disabilities provides the opportunity to participate in the workforce, volunteer, join in community activities and pursue hobbies that enrich their lives, leading to increased independence and community involvement. A total of 109 people took part in Albertina Kerr's community inclusion services last year with 95 percent on their way to or completing personal goals.

GROUP HOMES FOR ADULTS

Albertina Kerr runs twenty-eight neighborhood homes in Clackamas, Lane, Marion, Multnomah, and Washington counties that offer 24-hour support and individual growth opportunities to adults with developmental disabilities. Last year, Kerr provided services to 117 people with 96 percent either on their way to or having completed their personal goals.

SUPPORTED LIVING

A support system for adults with developmental disabilities that provides opportunities to create their own living situation based on their needs and goals. Four people received supported living services.

FOR CHILDREN & FAMILIES:

FAMILY RESOURCE CENTER

A place where families raising a child with mental health challenges and/or developmental disabilities can find support, answers to questions and gather for activities and events. Due to the relocation of the center, a change in staff leadership and the closing of a major community partner, the family resource center was only open part of the year and served 30 families.

FOSTER CARE

Safe and caring homes for foster children with mental health challenges as well as developmental disabilities. Foster care providers receive extensive training and 24-hour support. Last year, Kerr provided foster care for 106 children with both mental health challenges and developmental disabilities. More than 80 percent of families report that they feel they have more resources and support available.

GROUP HOMES FOR YOUTH

Sixteen group homes where 91 youth ages 8 to 18 with developmental disabilities and mental health challenges found around-the-clock support and life skills training in a safe and secure setting. Ninety-seven percent of the youth met their personal goals or are making significant, positive progress.

INTENSIVE TREATMENT PROGRAM

A safe and secure treatment program for youth with developmental disabilities, many of whom also have mental health challenges. This program is the only one of its kind in Oregon. This year, 19 youth were served.

CRISIS PSYCHIATRIC CARE (SUBACUTE)

Short-term residential care (usually less than two weeks) and 24-hour access to mental health professionals for children with urgent mental health crises. Children are stabilized and families connected with long-term services and support. This year, Kerr provided short-term crisis psychiatric care for 297 children who posed an immediate danger to themselves or others. Ninety-seven percent of children were stabilized and able to successfully transition to a less intensive level of care, including returning home.

COMMUNITY-BASED MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

Outpatient, early childhood and intensive community-based mental health services for children and their families provided in the child's home, school and community.

In the intensive community-based mental health services program, Kerr served 97 low-income children, ages 4 to 17, with emotional and behavioral health challenges who were at risk of losing their home or school placement. Therapy, skills training, and intensive behavioral support allowed 77% of children to remain safely in their home setting.

Kerr provided community-based outpatient services to 207 children with 79 percent of families reporting that they felt their child is better at handling daily life. In addition, Kerr served 32 very young children in the early childhood outpatient services program. All 32 children showed improvement.

Despite ongoing challenges in our state economy, Albertina Kerr has responded well to funding cuts from government sources through efficient management of its resources and solid fundraising efforts. Strong operational performance, combined with favorable investment returns and some generous estate gifts, enabled Albertina Kerr to increase its unrestricted net assets by 22% for the year.

Through strong fiscal management, Albertina Kerr has been able to increase our reserves to better position us to handle the impact of further funding cuts and uncertain economic conditions that lie ahead. In addition, we have continued our commitment to financial stewardship, with our recent audit producing no management letter findings.

ALBERTINA KERR'S ARMY OF ANGELS

ANNUAL MEETING & COMMUNITY AWARDS

More than 250 people attended the 104th Annual Meeting and Community Awards on October 25. Guest speaker Rachel Simon, author of Riding the Bus with My Sister, reminded us of the importance of Albertina Kerr's community-based care and its impact on individuals and families.

Silver Circle Award:

The Old Kerr Nursery Association was founded to help support the work of Albertina Kerr. Albertina's Restaurant and Shops have raised hundreds of thousands of dollars to support vital services over the past 30 years.

Outstanding Foundation Support:

Since 1947, the Collins Foundation has generously helped fund services to the most vulnerable in our community. Over the years, they have played a crucial role in providing support that helped Albertina Kerr make advances in innovation and care including our low lift project and youth group home improvement projects.

Outstanding Community Support, Business:

Precision Castparts Corp., has supported the work of Kerr both financially and through the time and talents of its leadership. A long time sponsor of various events, Precision Castparts has played an important role in ensuring that children, adults and families in our community get the services they need from Albertina Kerr.

Community Service Award:

Jim and Christina Trolinger have been involved with Albertina Kerr for more than a decade. Their time, dedication and generosity have made a significant impact on those we support today and into the future. Over the years, the Trolingers have also been an inspiration to others, engaging their staff at Swagelok NW (US).
